The Secession The Everybody's Magazine has the following short account of the history of Norway and Sweden and the cause which has led up to the dissolution of the Union:

For over four hundred years, from 1376 to 1814, Norway was a province of Denmark. Against her will she was transferred to Sweden. Bernadotte, one of Napoleon's marshals, who had been elected Crown Prince of Sweden by the efforts of a coalition of nobles, King Charles XIII being childless, united with England to compel Denmark to make the transfer. In 1818, Bernadotte succeeded to the throne as Charles XIV. He united the two countries, but each kept its laws and its national legislature, with power to legislate for its own territory subject to the royal veto, and representatives from each sat in the cabinet. Ever since the union there has been a strong opposition to it. Norway is more liberal, more democratic, as is natural in a land of mountaineers, sailors, and fishermen. The nationalist movement has been stimulated for sentimental and poetical reasons by Norwegian writers. Norway is for free trade, Sweden for protection. Since 1890 the Norwegian nationalists have demanded a separate Minister of Foreign Affairs and a separate consular service. A bill for the latter purpose was passed by the Norwegian Storting, or national assembly. It was vetoed by King Oscar II, one of the ablest and most democratic of rulers. Thereupon the Storting declared the union dissolved. Sweden declined to recognize the dissolution. Norway invited certain royal families to furnish her with a king.

Recent despatches say that the German Emperor shows a decided sympathy towards Sweden, while Russia who covets Scandinavia, is hardly in a position on account of the war with Japan and the internal troubles, to take much of a hand in the controversy so that possibly it may fall to the lot of King Edward and the German Emperor to name a ruler. Yet the controversy is of so great importance that as one eastern paper says: "It involves, or may involve, the command of the Baltic and the exclusion of Russia therefrom. In short, it is so dangerous that it will have to be put to sleep."

The Loss Of The indications are that unless some decided step is taken at once the Admission day races are the last that will be run at Spreckels Park. The Maui Racing Association for many years has given annual meets at this park and the events have, considering the number of animals entered, been equal, if not superior, to those held in the "good old days" at Kapiolani Park. One thing which the Maui Association has always prided itself upon was that it stood for square sport, but unfortunately in the last few years the public interest has seemed to lag and as a consequence the members themselves have become indifferent to the extent of permitting the Association to run into debt. There is in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars outstanding in delinquent dues, and it will take eight hundred dollars to put the Association squarely on its feet. Kamehameha Day in Honolulu in years past was the day of all days, but with the abandonment of the race track, died a natural death, and last June, was so far as this class of sport was concerned, a hollow sham as a holiday. Shall racing on Maui become a thing of the past? Let those who own fast horses get together and see what can be done to keep alive this time honored outdoor sport.

Patronizing The Pacific Commercial Advertiser of August 29th mentions that the enterprising Honolulu merchants are making more and more use of its publication (Sunday edition) as an advertising medium, and that its circulation has reached the high water mark. The News, since the taking over of the plant by the company formed for that purpose, has also reached an advanced mark in size, in circulation, and advertising patronage, enjoying not only the support of its live island merchants but has a representative showing from the commercial houses of Honolulu. While the advertising columns are comfortably filled with dependable and trustworthy concerns there is "always room for one more," and the fact that there are advertisements now running which commenced with the initial number, demonstrates beyond contradiction that advertising in the MAUI News pays.

Peace Out of the original eight demands made by Japan's peace envoys, five were granted. Russia refused to relinquish the interned warships and Japan waived the indemnity for war expenses and limitation of Russia's power in the East. By the terms of peace Japan establishes herself as the paramount power of the Orient. In the obtaining a port of the continental United States as the seat of conference of the peace envoys the power of the Hague has been diminished, and in the amicable settlement of the terms of peace President Roosevelt has won for himself the reputation of being the greatest statesman and diplomat of the century. This pride is not a matter of egotism on the part of American citizens, but is voiced by the press and diplomats of the civilized world.

Publish Bills The Honolulu Bulletin of August 28th publishes the suggestion, made supposedly from one high in authority, that it might be well for "County Supervisors to publish all bills and pay rolls" so that the general public could know exactly what money the county pays out from month to month, and that all expenditures could be observed for possible overcharge, errors, or other faults.

Will Build A Breakwater.

Final arrangements have just been completed whereby the Kahului Railroad Co. will commence improvements to Kahului harbor which will involve something like the expenditure of $100,000, on a breakwater, thus making the Kahului harbor as safe as that of Honolulu. The harbor will be a uniform depth of thirty-three feet and with the breakwater will permit of steamers and vessels of the largest tonnage remaining at safe anchorage in the heaviest weather, instead of having to go out side as is now the case.

Twenty-eight additional cottages of spacious dimensions suitable for the housing of the laborers and their families will soon be in course of construction.

Superintendent Filler's object in thus building up Kahului is not as has been supposed, to vie with any other town, but to build up a model workingmen's town whereby comfortable living quarters and nearness to their work will be the means of making the laborers more contented.

A good many of the men who work on the waterfront live in Wailuku which necessitates their rising earlier and getting home later, but with the new arrangement this will all be done away with.

Work is steadily forging ahead on the Paia extension up to the new mill; on the spur to the Wailuku Sugar Co. and on the extension for the passenger terminal in Wailuku, which will be just makai of the Settlement house, thus obviating the necessity of the residents of upper Wailuku hiring hacks.

Ample land has been acquired which will permit of the erecting of an attractive passenger depot and freight warehouse and the laying out of attractive grounds.

Maui Has Better Ponies.

HONOLULU, Aug. 30—"I think," said an Oahu polo enthusiast this morning, "that our team is just as good as that of Maui, as players, but the Maui men have certainly better ponies than our fellows have. Not that I'm making any excuses," he hastened to explain, "for the careful training of ponies and the selection of good ones is very much a part of the game, but facts are facts. I'm afraid our ponies are on the elderly side while Maui has some beauties. Sure Kela and Strawberry, who were bought from Kauai, from one of the Rice boys, are judged to be the best polo ponies here on the islands. All of their mounts are fresh as daisies and their condition certainly reflected the greatest credit on their handler."

Both teams were out for light practice yesterday and will be out again this afternoon. The practices are watched by a large crowd of lovers of the game and speculation on the result of the match for the championship is running high. Maui still remains the favorite in the betting and quietly, a good deal of money has been put up.

The arrangements for the polo ball have been concluded. The Royal Hawaiian Hotel has secured the big event. It will take place next Wednesday night. R. W. Shingle of the Oahu club has charge of the arrangements.

Mrs. Copp Is Recovering.

Mrs. Louisa Copp, wife of District Judge Copp of Makawao, who has been a sufferer from dropsy for the last four years is reported to be on the road to permanent recovery.

Mrs. Copp took a turn for the worse last Sunday and the relatives of the Judge and his wife were immediately summoned.

On Tuesday Dr. McConkey who been attending her at intervals during her sickness was called and performed an operation which greatly relieved her. Mrs. Copp has been a sufferer from rheumatism, which latter developed into dropsy, but it is now believed she will experience a complete recovery.

Aside from the immediate family, Mrs. A. N. Kepoikai and Mrs. George Weight, nieces of the Judge, and Judge Kepoikai have been in attendance during her recent severe attack. All of Mrs. Copp's friends, as well as relatives, are very grateful for the assurance given them by Dr. McConkey that Mrs. Copp is on the road to renewed health.

Bennington Meets Another Misfortune

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—While coming into the harbor yesterday afternoon, with the maimed hull of the Bennington in tow, the cruiser Chicago was caught in the combined grip of the wind and a strong ebb tide which heeled her over and ran her nose aground on the shoals off Angel Island. The Bennington, being thus left helpless, swung in a wide arc at the end of the tow line and was likewise in a fair way to strike the bottom, when her commander, warded off danger by dropping the gunboat's anchors. In the efforts which were then made to work the Chicago back into deep water under her own power, with some assistance from the tug Fortune, the larger vessel was much hampered by the drag of the Bennington, and when she finally slid off the shoal bumped into the gunboat with so much force that a seam in her side was opened, starting a leak in the store-room.

A Card of Thanks.

I desire to make public acknowledgement of my thanks to the people of Wailuku for the hearty and effective support which they so generously gave me during the "late unpleasantness."

In view of the confidence reposed in me, it seems proper to say that during my stay in Wailuku, I have labored under the impression that my business here is to teach school. In my anxiety to do my duty and to give the tax-payers an adequate return for their money, I very likely have made some mistakes. If so, I shall gladly admit—and correct—them.

In addition to the professional interest which I feel in the proper conduct of the Wailuku school, I now have the added incentive of personal obligation to the citizens of Wailuku. It shall be my most earnest endeavor to promote the welfare of the school in every possible way; to bring it up to a standard of efficiency second to none in the Territory, and to make it what it ought to be—an institution that will fit our young people to take their proper place in the business, the society and the citizenship of our country.

Most sincerely yours, C. E. COPELAND, Principal, Wailuku School.

It is possible that Wisconsin and Indiana passed those anti-cigarette laws just to keep District Attorney Jerome from lecturing in those States.—The Washington Post.
